Letter from the President

Dick Anderson
President

Parks Foundation
of Miami-Dade

It's our job to improve the parks and open spaces you love and together with like-minded foundations, corporate donors and individuals, we're touching more lives than ever before. The Parks Foundation of Miami-Dade had a banner year, raising more than $800,000 to enhance parks and parks programming throughout the community. We helped provide 500 children free swimming lessons, transformed Tamiami Park's aging recreation center into a new place to play for children with disabilities, and implemented a run-jog-walk program with AvMed Health Plans which helped dozens of children lose weight and stay in shape, including a brother and sister who lost a combined 70 pounds!

We're not resting on our laurels. We are committed to raising another $800,000 in 2013, including $100,000 for Miami-Dade Park's nationally-recognized Fit2Play Programs. Dollars are providing recreational scholarships – and a safety net – for children who would otherwise have few safe, structured after-school and summer camp options. Investments like these in our children will pay dividends down the road.

Plans are also on the table to showcase our community's 50-year vision for parks and open spaces through the creation of the first-ever transit-oriented park in Miami-Dade. Just as New York's High Line transformed a former elevated railroad spur into a linear park, Brickell Station Park will make use of scarce green space beneath Miami-Dade's Metrorail as we seek to create a seamless system of beautiful connections that move residents and visitors from place to place.

With a parks system so diverse and a Parks Department committed to excellence, innovation and stewardship, our Board's ability to provide stable and expanding mission-critical support is made that much easier. We invite you to see what we have accomplished together, where we are headed, and grow with us.

Letter from the Director

For more than 40 years, the National Recreation and Park Association has been the voice of America's Parks. In 2012, they dubbed Miami-Dade County Mayor Carlos Gimenez "Master of the Plan," saying our 50-year vision for parks and open spaces is setting the bar for parks systems all across the country. It was the latest feather in our cap as we seek to provide the outstanding recreational, natural and cultural experiences our residents and visitors have come to expect.

Park enhancements, large and small, came online in 2012. Homestead Bayfront Park welcomed a new restaurant and renovated atoll pool. Parks including West Perrine and Gwen Cherry unveiled new fitness zones. In 2013, we will break ground on a new Florida Exhibit at Zoo Miami and begin expanding Tropical Park's Equestrian Center. With an eye toward the future, we also combined our coastal parks and six marinas into one enterprise, setting the stage for enhanced revenue opportunities and an improved experience for park users.

Despite a slow economic recovery, we broke records. Zoo Miami and the Sony Ericsson Open enjoyed record attendance in 2012, and voters overwhelmingly approved the use of tournament revenues and private funds to enhance Crandon Tennis Center.

We continue to embrace the power of partnerships. Corporate and non-profit partners, as well as volunteers, are enhancing our programs and keeping our parks beautiful. A gift of $2.5 million for the restoration and preservation of the Deering Estate at Cutler is just one example.

With a commitment to providing excellent customer service, we implemented a comprehensive reorganization, reducing our workforce, while also assuming responsibility for 255-miles of median maintenance and the county's entire tree canopy. Our programs didn't skip a beat. In fact, the University of Miami's UHealth System determined our Fit2Play After-School Programs are improving the health of the hundreds of children we serve.

Still, we need to do more. While parks are an essential part of so many lives, more than half of children in unincorporated Miami-Dade live more than a mile from a county after-school program. Every child – and adult – deserves access to the safe places, wide open spaces and sense of community that our parks and parks programs provide. The benefits of parks to our health, economy and quality of life cannot be underestimated.

Our Programs

More than just a way to spend leisure time, recreation programs provided by Miami-Dade Parks, and supported by the Parks Foundation, are designed to ensure that all residents have access to quality, affordable activities that promote inclusiveness. More than 8,000 children, 500 seniors and 2,500 persons with disabilities are served each year.

FACT:

Of the 224,000 children who live in unincorporated Miami-Dade County, 56% (126,000) do NOT live within a mile of a Miami-Dade County recreation program.

FACTS:

- Kids spend an average of 6.5 hours a day with electronic media – 45 hours a week.
- 62% of children do not participate in organized sports
- 23% of children do not participate in any free-time activities

Fit2Play After-School Program

First-year results of a three-year-long study released in 2012 show Miami-Dade's Fit2Play After-School Program is making kids healthier. The University of Miami UHealth System used pre- and post- data from physical fitness and blood pressure tests, plus body mass index screenings, to determine Fit2Play prevents obesity and decreases hypertension in children ages 6-14. The program, which offers recreational games, nutritional education, an introduction to life sports, like golf and tennis, and homework help, is now being touted as a national model.

The Aetna Foundation provided a $40,000 grant to the Parks Foundation in 2012 to support the UHealth System's research of Fit2Play Programs.

A $10,000 grant from Pediatric Associates Foundation in 2012 is helping to fund Fit2Play computers and Fitnessgram.net, an online resource tool for parents that provides recommendations to maintain and/or improve a child's overall health.

Fit2Play Summer Camps

The Morning Mile expanded to 28 Fit2Play Summer Camps with support from AvMed Health Plans. Children start their morning with a run-jog-walk and receive incentives for every five miles logged. Developed by Fitness International, the program teaches kids to incorporate physical fitness into their daily routines.

Pictured here with AvMed's Pat Nelson, Moises Sanchez lost 40 pounds with the help of the Morning Mile. To celebrate, he shaved the words AvMed into his head. Moises' sister, Chelsea, lost 30 pounds.

Campers participating in the Morning Mile collectively ran more than 53,200 miles. AvMed Health Plans is expanding the program to all Miami-Dade Parks' Fit2Play Summer Camps in 2013.

Currently in development, eFit2Play is a fun, educational, interactive website and wellness tool designed to further enhance the Fit2Play curriculum. Designed to track and incentivize physical education and healthy eating, children receive points that can be redeemed for free products and services.

Did you know?

The Parks Foundation provides $100,000 in scholarship funding to disadvantaged children to attend after-school or summer camp programs at low or no cost, providing a vital safety net for children who might otherwise fall through the cracks.

Fit2Play Scholarship Fund

Created for families who simply cannot afford program fees, the Fit2Play Scholarship Fund offers disadvantaged children safe, structured activities free of crime, drugs and gang-related activities. Dollars donated to the scholarship fund receive 100% matching funds, and more importantly, keep kids healthy, off the streets, engaged and safe.

Swim for Jenny Scholarship Fund

Nearly 500 children received free learn-to-swim scholarships at 12 public pools across Miami-Dade through donations to the Swim for Jenny Scholarship Fund. The fund was created in 2011 after Jenny Nguyen, a 12-year-old South Florida girl, drowned at a friend's birthday party.

The Urban Paradise Guild has adopted a 5-acre area of Matheson Hammock Park, and removed hundreds of exotic trees and shrubs, replacing them with native trees.

Our Environment

The preservation, beautification and connection of parks and open spaces made significant strides in 2012, as we welcomed two new county divisions, the Right of Way Aesthetics Management Division (RAAM) and the Community Image Advisory Board (CIAB).

FACTS:

- More than 3,000 requests for safety tree trimming and dead tree removal were answered by Miami-Dade Parks RAAM Division in 2012.

Right of Way Aesthetics Management is charged with maintaining:

- 255 miles of medians
- 23 miles of Metrorail and Metromover

The Community Image Advisory Board (CIAB), chaired by Miami-Dade County Commissioner Dennis Moss, leads the Million Trees Miami campaign which is supported by the Parks Foundation.

The goal is to increase the county's tree canopy, from 14% to 30% coverage by the year 2020.

To date the campaign has planted 104,000 trees.

Bioplanet, the first supporting sponsor of Million Trees Miami, planted over 200 trees in Miami-Dade parks last year.

Did you know?

- Trees save energy and reduce storm water runoff.
- Trees increase property values by making communities more appealing.

Water Conservation

Water consumption by Miami-Dade Parks is expected to be reduced by 20-percent through a smart metering project initiated in 2012 with IBM. Parks will be better able to monitor consumption and more quickly identify water leaks, generating up to $1 million in savings per year.

Energy Savings

Solar panels were installed at three recreation centers in 2012. The electricity generated is expected to save $5,000 annually.

Tobacco-Free Zones were implemented at over 40 park locations and near all playgrounds and youth ball fields in 2012 to ensure a healthier environment for all park users.

Wildlife Conservation

The Parks Foundation secured a $13,500 grant from the Andrew Sabin Family Foundation to support the Sea Turtle Conservation Program which surveils and assists sick, stranded and deceased turtles.

Animal Care & Exhibition

With support from the Zoological Society of Florida (ZSF), Zoo Miami thrived in 2012. New education and conservation initiatives, coupled with record attendance, are setting the stage for a new exhibit focused on Everglades preservation, and laying the groundwork for the development of a family entertainment complex surrounding South Florida's largest attraction.

"Anala" is the first successful birth of Indian rhino at Zoo Miami, and only the third born at a U.S. zoo in 2011. The calf's mother, "Kalu", is an 11-year-old one-horned rhino.

Four critically-endangered Jamaican Iguanas were born in 2012, making Zoo Miami only the second US zoo to successfully hatch the large lizards.

Natural Areas Management coordinated the rescue and release of over 4,000 Atala butterfly larvae onto preserve lands.

Historic Preservation

The Deering Estate at Cutler had a breakthrough year in 2012. With support from the Deering Estate Foundation, educational programming was expanded and facilities were enhanced. An individual $2.5 million gift will work to leverage further historic preservation and restoration of the property.

Students at Perrine Elementary School participate in the Deering Estate's new NESST (Nurturing Environmental Stewards of Today and Tomorrow) Program. The science-based, hands-on environmental stewardship program is expanding in 2013 with support from The Miami Foundation, and poised to become a national model.

Our Future

Significant strides were made in 2012 towards realizing the vision of the Open Space Master Plan (OSMP), Miami-Dade's 50-year blueprint for the development of parks and open spaces into the 21st Century.

Great Park Summit

Fairchild Tropical Botanic Garden was the site for the 2012 Great Park Summit presented by AvMed Health Plans. Held once every two years, the summit brings together people with a passion for great parks and open spaces, and a vision for making them more sustainable, interconnected and economically vibrant.

Locally and nationally recognized speakers discuss the importance of parks for improving the economy, environment and health of Miami-Dade County.

The summit's theme, Partnerships Through Creative Initiatives: Red field to Green fields, showcased an initiative designed to redevelop underutilized commercial land with new parks as the first phase of re-development, creating jobs and enhancing property values. Miami-Dade Parks was selected as a pilot site for the initiative, funded through a grant from the Speedwell Foundation with a local match from The John S. and James L. Knight Foundation.

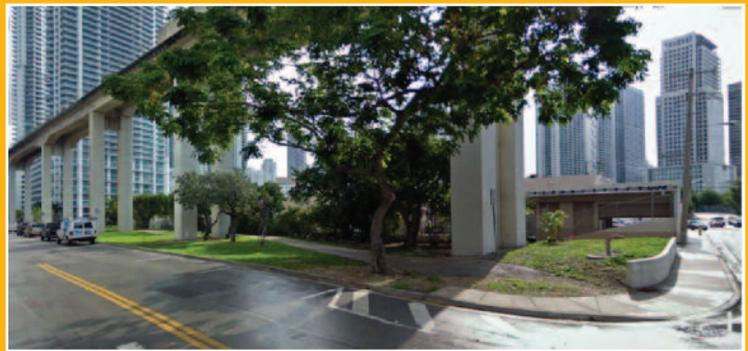

Did you know?

More than 29 local municipalities, universities, state and national park agencies are members of the South Florida Parks Coalition. Coalition members meet to share knowledge and expertise with the goal of creating a model park system.

Brickell Station Park

Plans are on the table to showcase the OSMP with Miami-Dade Parks' first-ever transit-oriented park. Located beneath Miami-Dade's above ground railway system, Brickell Station Park will utilize a revenue-generating app to promote local businesses and events, reduce traffic congestion and provide much-needed park land and green space for residents and visitors.

Just as New York's High Line transformed a former elevated railroad spur into a linear park, Brickell Park will make use of scarce green space beneath Miami-Dade's Metrorail as we seek to create a seamless system of beautiful connections that move residents and visitors from place to place.

Bikeways and Trails

Connecting great parks and public spaces is a major component of the OSMP. New bikeways and trails are helping us realize that vision. Construction and/or planning began on three major greenway expansion projects in 2012.

- Black Creek Trail (South-West)
Extending from Larry and Penny Thompson Park to Black Point Park and Marina, the 8.7 mile Black Creek Trail is being widened, resurfaced and enhanced with additional trail segments. Amenities will include landscaping, wayfinding signage, rest areas and small shelters.

- Snake Creek Trail (North)
The 4.5 mile Snake Creek Trail along Miami Gardens Drive will feature a 10-foot wide asphalt surface connecting parts of North Miami Beach, Miami Gardens and unincorporated Miami-Dade. Amenities will include two landscaped mini-parks with adult fitness stations, rubberized play climbers for tiny tots, rain shelters with single tables, benches and bicycle racks.

- River of Grass Greenway
At the request of the National Park Service and with the help of a $1.2 million grant, Miami-Dade Parks is managing the planning of the River of Grass Greenway, a 12-14 foot wide corridor through the Everglades which will extend from Miami-Dade's Krome Avenue to Naples.

residents, age 55 and older. The 14,000+ square foot Arcola Lakes Senior Center will include entertainment rooms, an arts and crafts room, a ceramics room, exercise room, banquet meeting hall, therapeutic pool and more. The facility is scheduled to open in October 2013.

Ronald Reagan Equestrian Center

Miami-Dade Parks' Ronald Reagan Equestrian Center will undergo an 110,000 square foot expansion, enabling it to lure additional equestrian events. The venue, which already hosts over 36 shows a year, will be the site of the Mundial Caballos de Paso Confepaso 2013, the "World Cup" of Paso Fino events.

Florida: Mission Everglades

The diverse habitats of Florida are coming together to offer Zoo Miami visitors a new zoo experience. Set to open in 2014, the Florida: Mission Everglades exhibit and front entry plaza will showcase pine rocklands, coastal mangrove marshes, grasslands and the creatures that live within them.

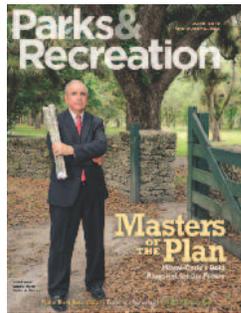

Community Needs Assessment Survey

In 2013, Miami-Dade Parks will randomly sample households in neighborhoods across Miami-Dade in an effort to better understand the recreation interests and needs of residents. The survey, to be issued in three languages, will be combined with public meetings, to guide future planning, development and programming decisions.
